Gettysburg After the Battle.

BY HENRY H. GOODRICH.

What wreck and ruin War hath made
Around thy fields, fair Gettysburg!
As if with mattock, hoe and spade,
Death here had delved, thy fields had dug,
To make a fitting burial bed
For heroes slain,—the glorious dead!

How changed thy tranquil harvest-scene,
Where he beneath his iron heel
Hath crushed to earth its living green,
Hath held wild revelry of steel,
Of blood and carnage o'er its sod—
A Nation's holocaust to God!

How woke the stillness of thine air,
As rumbling drum and shrilly fife,
And banners waving free and fair,
Announced the coming of that strife,
Which, for all time, shall make thy name
Like Marathon's—Platea's fame!

And when the iron storm was o'er,
The vanquished from the field had fled,
And thousands lay in weltering gore—
The wounded, dying, and the dead—
'Twas then thy painful task to see
How dear-bought was the victory!

Th' unnumbered dead, that round thee lay
Like harvest sheaves by reapers bound;
The fair-haired boy, and veteran grey,
Locked in that sleep that hears no sound,
Nor echoes of the fiery plain,
Nor martial trump, shall rouse again.

The moan, the plaint of dying men,
Which they in Nature's feebleness
Could ill-repress, nor yet as when
Earth's glories fade to nothingness;
Their parting words, their last farewell
Ere from their lips no accents fell.

The shattered forms of human life;
They who from out the sulphurous smoke,
The battle's rage and fiery strife,
As blasted by the lightning's stroke,
Stood forth of beauty, strength bereft,
Naught but their country's honors left.

And all the sad havoc of the field:
The wild debris; all trodden down,
Had it been spared, the sickle's yield;
The soldier's vestments widely strown,
And sword, and musket, bayonet,
Stained with his blood and gory wet.

The noble, gallant steed o'erthrown;
Prone to the earth which late his heel
Had spurned—whence from his nostrils blown
The breath of war—by broken wheel
And caisson, cannon, shot and shell,
Where they in shattered ruin fell.

But yet again the summer's bloom
Shall deck thy graves all sodless now;
With ranker growth the hero's tomb
Where oft had broke the stubborn plough,
As if sweet Nature's kindly hand
Henceforth would own thou'rt hallowed land.

Above thy Cemetery's height,
Where thou hadst laid thy village dead—
Where waged the conflict's fiercest fight,
And blood of bravest men was shed—
Perhaps the marble's fane shall rise
And point in grandeur toward the skies.

But with thy charming landscape blent,
Memorials of the eventful hour,
And each a nobler monument
Than sculptured stone of sculptor's power
Wolf Hill and Round Top proudly stand,
And bound thy scene on either hand.

Yet, Muse of the Historic page,
Immortal as her art divine,
Shall best preserve, from age to age,
Thy records in her burning line,
Defying Time's defacing rust
That crumbles marble e'en to dust.

Inspired by her, oft to thy vales,
Thy woody heights, thy murmuring streams,
Her votaries shall come, thy tales
To hear, and gaze in pensive dreams
Upon each consecrated spot,
Where sleep thy brave, forgotten not.

LIFE IN THE BACK-WOODS.

Old Jimmy Waddle's First Courtship.

"TALKIN' o'sprees, boys, puts me in mind o' my young days. I should rather guess I was in for 'em some myself them times."

This was said by an old man, whom we will introduce as Mr. James Waddle, or rather as "old Jim Waddle." Everybody, (except the reader) knows him and his penchant for yarn-spinning. It was the evening of a militia training day; there were a goodly number, after the company was dismissed from duty, who were lounging around, and all gathered around the aforesaid old Jim, to hear his yarn, to which he had already begun the prelude, and only waited for somebody to urge him to go on. This there were enough to do. He then inquired what they would have—'one of his huntin' or courtin' sprees?" The boys unanimously demanded the latter. Then, after requesting that none of them should laugh till he got through, with a few preparatory hems, and an assumption of a comically grave face, he commenced: [I wish I could report in his inimitable language, verbatim et literatim.]

"When I were a boy, you know, daddy moved from Virginia to Kaintuck. I'd been born and fouch up on the fronteers, and Kaintuck was a paradise for me to hunt bars and Ingins in. But I forgot, you want a courtin' story. Well, altho' I was always a cuttin' up some deviltry among the boys, yet, somehow, I was a little shy and skeery amongst the gals. I liked the critters prodigiously; but about the only way I could manage to show it, was by castin' sheep's eyes in abundance at 'em. We had meetins as well as frolics, sometimes. While the preacher was preachin' tender-heartedness, brotherly-kindness and love, I wasn't thinkin' o' nothin' else. I used to set where I could look the gals in the face—and then gaze at some purty one till she'd blushed as red as a pepper-pod. Then I felt so queer about the gizzard, and wish'd an earthquake would come and throw me right in her lap. I was in love, but I couldn't tell who I loved most. There was Peggy Masonhammer, a mighty fine gal, even in her tow-linen frock, her cheeks war as full as a China pig's, and as red as a turkey gobbler's; and then thar was Sally Perkins, with her gloriously striped home-made cotton frock, besides her ha'r and eyes as black as ink; and then thar was dimple check'd, blue ey'd Lottie Smith, who always toted her shoes and stockin's in her hands till she got in sight of meetin'. Well, o' these three I couldn't tell, for my life, which I liked best—sometimes one and sometimes another, but allers the last one I looked at.

"But when Squire Crumpton come to our diggins, his two gals took the shine off the rest on' em, 'specially the oldest one, Betsy. I shan't attempt to describe her; but when I tell you she had a calico frock, with yaller flowers, as big as your hands, brass car-bobs, besides half-a-dozen strans o' beads, as large as the end of your little finger, you may think she was a charmer—I did, any how. Of all the magnum bonum charmers I ever seed, she was the magnum bonest! And so all the young fellers said too. When I first seed her, it was at Deacon Snook's meetin'. I fastened my eyes on her till her's met mine; she looked steadfastly, then smiled a charming smile, and blushed and looked down. Lordy! there was a flutterin' then equal to a saw-mill, 'tween my two jacket pockets. I felt as a goner. From that hour I was too big for my breeches; of Sundays, I borried dad's breeches he'd been married in before the Revolutionary war, and come off at his knees; but he was tall and I warn't, they came below mine three or four inches. Agin the meetin' I was prepared to cut a big stiff—sister Sal, for the purpose, starched and ironed my new shirt as stiff and slick as a sheet of tin. This shirt had the finest kind of flax linen in the bosom and collar, but the invisible part of it was coarse tow, with a hem that would cable a steamboat.

"Now, while Sal was smoothing the wrinkles near the said hem with an iron just hot from the fire, down stairs tumbles one o' the tarnal brats, knockin' the breath out'n it. It was Saturday night; and she was the only one up and ran to it in course, but afore it come to, the iron had made its mark—that is, burnt two holes in the extremity of my linen. Next mornin' I put it on as it was, then dad's true blues, then the fust reg'lar built par of shoes I'd ever had.

"I was seventeen just that Sunday mornin', and in my Sunday riggin' felt myself a man, and was resolved if Betsy Crumpton was at meetin' to show it. Well, she was thar, and I axt for her company, and got it. Walkin' by her side, I felt as light as nothin'—skercely touched the ground I walked on. But I shan't tell the fine things I thought and said to her on the way, and more after we got home. 'Oh, yes, do,' said several voices. No, you'll have enough without that, you're to skim the cream off the story yet.

"She kept me up late, say two o'clock; and spite of the novelty—it being the first time—I got sleepy. Now the Squire had just come to these parts, and put up a one-story, one-roomed log cabin, and the whole family, 'cept some of the young ones slept below. I was a leetle bashful 'bout gwine to bed thar, but I was three miles from home, and it was rainin' like blue blazes; I had to do it, without exposin' the blank in my linen. I resolved to be up afore anybody else in the mornin' on the same account and some others.

"This was the last I know'd till wakened by the hounds (half a dozen of which slept under the bed) a pullin' the kivers off'n me. Holy heavens! the sun two hours high, breakfast on the table, and me in bed! Just as I was gwine to spring out, in pops the old 'oman, with a plate o' sassage. It was dog days now, and she cooked in the shanty, I possumed sleep till she went out again, and then looked for my trowsers—thar they wur in the jaws of the pups at the foot of the bed! I made a mighty plunge over the foot-board to retake them, but oh, horrors! my head down and my heels up. What's the matter, thinks I—but it flashed across me in a moment that the hole in my linen was over the post—and a tall post tu! I kick'd and flounder'd and flounder'd, but all to no purpose—I couldn't get down—I strained to break the hem, but it was no go. Jist now all the hounds commenced yellin' so furiously the old 'omen and both gals run in to see what was up, and when they seed it was me they run off—one begin to hollow for the Squire, while tothers through the cracks, with fishin' poles battled the cursed hounds that were wullin' me.

"Oh, I thought of Absolem and every body that ever did hang, but he didn't hang by the wrong end, no, that was a consolation I had not. I'd a cust my fate like a Boston, but I remember'd I belonged to meetin' and it was agin the rules. I did howsomever think some mighty hard words if I didn't speak 'em. But all that didn't do any good. I couldn't make nothin' by pullin' downwards, so I thought I'd climb up the post and unloose myself that way. I had nearly succeeded when one of the unmannerly pups attacked me in the rear, and loosin' my holt, the bottom busted off, and I came out full length on the floor, in presisely the same state of fix Job said he came to the world. The next minit I was under the bed, where the everlasting pups had dragged my trowsers. I cufft them off, but every time I put one leg partly on, the infernal whelps wo'd pull tother off.

"I worried in this way some time, when a puncheon gave way, and I fell through into a trough of soap under the house! Gosh! I thought it was in the pit that's bottomless! I sprung for my life, but in doing this I threw myself into the face and stomach of Squire Crumpton, who was cumin' on the run, 'specting the Injuns was a massacreeing the whole family. The collision threw him down the hill, and I followed heels over head to the bottom. There I recovered my understanding, and without any apologies, or even a word, I struck a bee-line for home, just as I was in my native purity, at a speed that split the winds, my toe-nails striking fire out 'n the flints every jump!

"But, b'hoys, I never went within a quarter of a mile of Squire Crumpton's afterwards—nor did I even cast sheep's eyes at Betsy again, let alone gallanting her home."

MR. AVERY, of Mobile, gives the latest instance of the wonderful intelligence of the redeemed and reconstructed African. Avery had a case in court and a colored boy for witness. "Do you know the nature, obligations and responsibilities of an oath?" sharply asked the judge. "Yes, sir," responded Scipio Africanus. "Well, then, what do you think would be done with you of you were to swear to a lie?" "Dunno unless it might be the radicals would run me for Congress." Sharp boy that.

Treating a Case Actively.

There ensues a description of "Treating a Case Actively," which made the collector of this omnium gatherum shake his sides, at the same time that it struck him as one of most effective temperance stories he had met for many a long day. The tale is told by a physician who had been called in great haste to attend a "gentleman of respectability," who had been discovered in his room lying senseless on the floor.

He found his "patient" in great distress of mind.

"What is the matter with Mr. H.?" asked the doctor.

"I am afraid it is apoplexy," said his wife; "I found him lying upon the floor as if he had suddenly fallen from his chair. His face is purple, and he breathes with great difficulty.

The doctor examined the "patient," and finds this report correct, although he sees no clearer indications of any actual or approaching congestion of the brain.

"Hadn't he better be bled, doctor?" asked the anxious wife.

"I don't know that it is necessary," replied the doctor; "I think if we let him alone it will pass off in the course of a few hours."

"A few hours! he may die in half an hour!" said the wife.

"I don't think the case is so dangerous, madam," remarked the doctor.

"Apoplexy not dangerous!" said she.

The doctor delicately hinted that he might possibly have been drinking too much brandy.

"No, doctor," said, she "the disease is more deeply seated than that; surely I should know. He had better be bled. He had better be bled. Won't you bleed him doctor?"

Thus urged, the doctor took from him about eight ounces of blood, but still he lay insensible.

"Something else must be done," urged his wife; "if he isn't relieved very soon, he must die!"

The doctor was not the regular physician, and felt his position to be a difficult one; he was therefore firm in his resolution not to do any thing more for the patient until the family doctor came.

At length he arrived, and the two doctors conversed aside for a few moments, and then proceeded to the bedside of the patient.

There were still no signs of approaching consciousness.

"Don't you think his head ought to be shaved and blistered?" asked the wife, anxiously.

"Yes, by all means," said the doctor. "Send for the barber and a blister at once."

The barber came; the head was shaved, and a blister applied to the poor man's skin; but finally the pain ceased, and he slept. When he awoke, his first exclamation was—

"What's the matter with my head? It feels as if it was scalded. Where's my hair? And what's my arm tied up for in this way?"

His wife told him to be quiet, and he sunk back on his pillow with a sullen groan. Presently, however, he said to his wife—

"Sarah, why in the name of goodness did you let the doctors butcher me in this way"

"It was to save your life, dear."

"Save the d—l!"

"Hush, dear, every thing depends upon your being quiet."

He only moaned, "Too bad! too bad!"

Now the facts of the case were, that he couldn't take wine nor strong drink without being tempted into excess. To see was to taste—to taste was to fall. At last his friends urged him to shut himself up at home for a certain time, and see if total abstinence would not give him strength.

He got on very well for a time—particularly as his coachman kept a well-filled bottle for him in the carriage-house, to which he not unfrequently resorted; but a too ardent devotion to the bottle brought on the supposed apoplexy. The cure was effectual.

The patient kept quiet on the subject, and bore his shaved head upon his shoulders with as much philosophy as he could muster. A wig, after the sores had disappeared that had been made by the blister, concealed the barber's work until his own hair had grown again. He never ventured upon wine or brandy afterward, for fear of apoplexy.

When the truth leaked out—as all such things will—his friends had many a hearty laugh, but they wisely concealed from the object of their merriment the fact that they knew any thing more than appeared of the cause of his supposed illness.

A JOKE ON A HOTEL KEEPER.—One of our Portland hotel keepers was not long since victimized in the following manner: A. B. went to him and engaged board by the week at $10 per week. "Now," said A. B., "I may be absent occasionally; what deduction will you make for that?" "Fifty cents a meal and fifty cents a lodging," replied the landlord. Time wore on and A. B. was sometimes there, and sometimes not. After a while the landlord presented his bill for three week's board—$30. In a short time A. B. appeared with a counter bill of deduction for meals and lodgings, missed. Meals eaten, three, $1.50; lodgings, seven, 3.50; meals missed, sixty, $30; lodgings missed, fourteen, $7; balance in favor of A. B., $2. The landlord, of course, was a little astonished at the result of the reckoning, and therefore said not a word, for the best of reasons, that he couldn't think of anything that would do justice to the subject. Whereupon A. B., to relieve the landlord's perplexity, remarked with cool urbanity, "well, never mind the $2; I'll take it out in board." The landlord couldn't see how to keep even with such a boarder, and so the connection between him and A. B., as landlord and boarder, came to an end.—Portland Oregonian.

A Dull Clerk.

Pickernal, a successful dry goods merchant of Boston, was waited upon at his hotel by a gentleman farmer who was desirous of getting a boy, for whom he was a guardian, a "place" in Boston—of course he was an uncommon smart boy, quick in figures, strong of intuition and one every way fit, as he should 'judge,' to become a merchant. Pickernal thought it over, and said he would try and make a place for him. In due time the boy arrived at Pickernel's store, his broad face ruddy with health, and soapy from the morning wash, his hair slicked, his clothes new and uncomfortable, and a stiff dickey cutting his ears. He announced himself as the boy, &c.

"Ah, you are the boy, are you?" said Pickernel.

"Yes, I s'pose so," replied youngster.

"Well, come in here, then; I am very busy, but I will examine you in a few practical questions."

The boy came in and sitting down on the desk, swung his heels underneath it as though he felt entirely at home, waiting the questions.

"Well," said Pickernel, "suppose a lady should come in here, and buy a dress of fifteen and a half yards of calico at eleven and a half cents a yard, what would it come to?"

The boy looked at his questioner, at the ceiling, at the floor, in a state of great bewilderment.

"How much caliker?" he asked.

"Fifteen and a half yards."

"What price?"

"Eleven and a half cents."

He thought a moment.

"Well," said he, "I'm darned if I b'lieve any woman ever wanted so much cloth for a dress as that."

This was throwing up the sponge, and Pickernel put another question.

"How much would five and a half pounds of tea come to at seventy-five and three quarter cents per pound?"

He received this pretty much the same as the other, and after waiting a minute, he asked—

"Was it green or black tea?"

Without answering, Pickernal put another question—

"Suppose I should send you out with a two dollar bill, and you should buy fourteen and a half pounds of beef at seven and a half cents a pound, how much money would you have left?"

The boy looked at him for an instant and then indulged in a low whistle.

"You don't s'pose," said he, "you can get beef anywhere at seven and a half cents a pound, do ye?"

Pickernel gave up at this. He asked him no more questions, but sent him back next day with a letter, stating that he didn't think he would answer.

EMBARRASSING.—A gentlemanly agent of a certain city was collecting fares from the passengers of a very full omnibus one morning. All paid promptly except one fat old lady, who sat next the door, and who seemed to be reaching down as if to get some thing she had dropped on the floor. When her time came to pay she raised her head and thus addressed the blushing youth:

"I allers, when I travels, carry my money in my stockin, for you sees, nothing can get at it thar, and I'd thank you, young man, jist to retch it for me, as I'm so jammed in that I can't git to it."

The youth looked at the other passengers, some of whom were laughing, at his plight; one or two young ladies among them blushed scarlet, and he beat a sudden retreat, muttering something about not charging old ladies, etc. His cash was short that morning the fare of one passenger.

HARDLY FAIR TO THE FAIR.—A fellow with a villainous imagination has been guilty of getting off the following effusion. We do not, by any means, endorse the sentiments, and only publish them to show our lady readers what vile slanders they can be subjected to:

There are many young ladies now drifting through life.
That think they were born to be somebody's wife,
That sigh in the morning, and pout all their night
Because some one was absent, the previous night,
That sit by the window, and wonder who'll be
The unfortunate one—that will "freeze on to me,"
There are none very ugly—these innocent girls,
With their chignons and laces, their flounces and curls;
They are a sweet looking tribe, with nothing to do
But sit by the window, promenaders to view,
To play the piano, on luxuries feed,
And the latest sensation, in literature read;
Of course never idle, in these little things
For, the time unemployed, she lovingly sings
To some she's met yesterday in the street,
Where a little flirtation, so charmingly sweet
Was indulged in; of course she won't marry
Her poor cousin Larry, but rather she'll tarry
Till some one who's rich, chance passes along,
Who's handsome, and probably, to him she'll belong.
But, alas, not a wife, the word's out of place,
For a beautiful form, and a sweet looking face
Is not all that's required, in drifting through life
To form a companion—a dear little wife,
What then is the use of soliloquy mute
To think for a moment, In this world of strife
Of ever becoming a somebody's wife—
May banish the thought—they alas seek in vain
They are born for, no other reason 'tis plain
A reason—assuredly every "somebody" knows,
They were born for them only, to buy them their clothes.

A YOUNG lady who had just purchased a watch and wanted to show it, was shopping at a dry-goods store in Springfield, a few days since. Drawing it forth with a flourish, and glancing at it and the young man who was waiting upon her, she inquired: "Can you tell me what time the 12 o'clock train starts for Northampton?" "About noon," very quietly replied the young man. "Ah, indeed! then I have just fifteen minutes."

THE HEAVENLY CITY.

I know her walls are jasper, her palaces are fair,
And to the sound of harpings the saints are singing there;
I know that living waters flow under faithful trees—
But ah! to make my heaven it needeth more than these.

Read on the sacred story; what more doth it unfold,
Besides the pearly gateways and the streets of shining gold?
No temple hath that city for none is needed there;
No sun nor moon enlighteneth; can darkness, then be fair?

Ah! now the glad revealing, the crowning joy of all,
What need of other sunlight where God is all in all;
He fills the wide ethereal with glory all His own,
He whom my soul adoreth, the Lamb amid the throne!

O, heaven without my Saviour would be no heaven to me;
Dark were the walls of jasper, rayless the crystal sea;
He gilds earth's darkest valley with light and joy and peace;
What, then, must be the radiance when night and death shall cease?

Speed on, O lagging moments! Come, birthday of the soul!
How long the night appeareth; the hours, how slow they roll?
How sweet the welcome summons that greets the willing bride!
And when mine eyes behold him I shall be satisfied.

THE GOOD PREACHING MAY DO.—A gentleman was once riding in Scotland by a bleaching ground where a woman was at work watering her web of linen cloth. He asked her where she went to church, what she heard on the preceding day, and how much she remembered. She could not even tell the text of the last sermon.

"And what good can the preaching do you," said he, "if you forget it all?"

"Ah sir," replied the poor woman, "if you look at this web on the grass, you will see that as I put the water on it the sun dries it all up; and yet, sir, I see it grows whiter and whiter."

DIDN'T LIKE THE IDEA.—A little girl at one of our Sunday Schools was told by her teacher that she must be a good little girl in order that when she died she might become an angel. She replied that she did not want to be an angel. On being asked why, she replied that she didn't wish "to take off her pretty clothes and wear fedders like a hen." She is sister to the little boy who didn't want to "be born again, for fear he might turn out a girl." There is no hope for these two children.

"The good died young,
While those whose lives are dry as summer's dust
Burn to the socket."

HOW ABOUT IT!—If some unseen individual could pass around from house to house about ten o'clock on a Sunday morning, he would be likely to hear a list of excuses for not attending church, something like the following:

Overslept myself. Could not dress in time. Too cold. Too windy. Too dusty. Too wet. Too damp. Too sunny. Too cloudy. Don't feel disposed. No other time to myself. Look over my drawers. Put my papers to rights. Letters to write to my friends. Mean to take a walk. Going to take a ride. Tied to business six days in the week. No fresh air but on Sundays. Can't breathe in church, always so full. Feel a little feverish. Feel a little chilly. Feel very lazy. Expect company to dinner. New bonnet not come home.

A BACKWOODS ADVENTURE.—A Virginia banker, who was chairman of a noted infidel club, was once traveling through Kentucky, having bank bills to the amount of about $25,000. When he came to a lonely forest where murderers and robbers were said to frequent he was soon lost, through taking the wrong road.

The darkness of the night came over him and how to escape from the threatening danger he knew not. In his alarm he suddenly espied in the distance, a dim light, and urging his horse onward, he at length came to a wretched cabin. He knocked, and the door was opened by a woman, who said that her husbank was out hunting, but would soon return. The gentleman put up his horse and entered the cabin, but with feelings that can be better imagined than described. Here he was, with a large sum of money, and perhaps in the house of one of the robbers whose name was a terror to the country.

In a short time the man of the house returned. He had on a deer skin shirt, a bear skin cap, much fatigued, and in no talkative mood. He felt for pistols in his pockets and placed them so as to be ready for instant use.

The man asked the stranger to retire to bed but he declined, saying he would sit by the fire all night. The man urged, but the more the man urged the more the infidel was alarmed. He felt assured that this was his last night upon earth, but he determined to sell his life as dearly as he could. His infidel principles gave him no comfort. His fear grew into agony. What was to be done?

At length the backwoodsman arose, reached to the wooden shelf, took down an old book and said:

"Well, stranger, if you won't go to bed, I will; but it is my habit to read a chapter of the Holy Scriptures before I go to bed."

What a change these words produced. Alarm was at once removed from the skeptic's mind. Though avowing himself an infidel, he now had confidence in the Bible. He felt that a man who kept an old Bible in his house, and bent his knees in prayer, was no robber or murderer. He listened to the paryer of the good man, at once dismissed his fears and laid down, in his rude cabin and slept as calmly as he did under his father's roof.

From that time he ceased to revile the good old Bible. He became a sincere Christian, and often related the story of his eventful journey, to prove the folly of infidelity.

The Columbian
—AND—
Bloomsburg Democrat.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING NOV. 5, 1869.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation of any paper published in Northern Pennsylvania, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

Controversial and Correctional.

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE:—The Danville Intelligencer of Oct. 29th says, it is bad enough for members of Congress to send useless political documents through the mails, "but a worse abuse to see an Ex-U. S. Senator, like one we have in this district, acting more outrageously still by sending thousands upon thousands of copies of his newspaper though the mail under his frank when his term of office had ended six months before."

We pass the grammar of this extract, and also the evident blunder by the writer in expressing his meaning. (He really means that the franking of certain papers is an abuse, and not the seeing it done.) To the body of his accusation we reply:

That the franking privilege of members of Congress extends to the 1st Monday of December following the expiration of their terms of service. This is an express provision of the Post Office Act of March 2nd 1863.

That Mr. Buckalew has not franked "thousands upon thousands" (nor hundreds either) "of copies of his newspaper," or of any newspaper, through the mails, either before or since the expiration of his term of service.

That he has no newspaper—"his newspaper"—to frank through the mails, if he desired to use his privilege for such purpose.

No doubt Chalfant refers to the COLUMBIAN, in this high-pressure article. But Mr. Buckalew has no pecuniary interest in this paper directly or indirectly, nor has any other human being beside the avowed Editor and Proprietor.

A few extras issued from this office containing the official proceedings of the Senatorial Conference, were franked through the mails early in the campaign. They were certainly proper for public information, but the whole number so distributed was less than one hundred and probably did not reach fifty. The extras issued by us during the canvass were generally distributed by private hand, and several hundred distributed through the Danville Post Office had postage prepaid upon them.

These details may be thought trivial but as we have personal knowledge of the facts we choose to give them in order that Chalfant's small slang shall be duly exposed as both malicious and false.

Abuses of the franking privilege which well deserve censure might be mentioned upon which our critic has been profoundly silent. Among these was the use of hand-stamps by members of Congress for franking their names, which could be used by others, and were so used extensively. This "abuse" Mr. Buckalew always opposed and assisted to break up last winter. Again, it has been too common a practice for members of Congress to furnish franked envelopes to their friends for use in their private correspondence. The Representative from our own district (Mr. Mercur) has furnished such for use in this town, and we have heard complaints of an extensive use of his frank to cover business correspondence at Towanda. Why does not Chalfant assault Mercur for this evident "abuse" of his privilege instead of abusing our late Senator without cause and unjustly? There is a plain, short answer to this question:—Chalfant has never run as a candidate for office against Mercur and been beaten by him six thousand votes!

Bradley as a Biographer.

Our neighbor of the Republican (or some one through his columns) has undertaken to give a sketch of Senator Buckalew. It is a strange jumble of compliment and censure, but like all new performances in literary art may deserve some notice if not a formal review. We shall quote a few passages and append our comments.

The writer says:—"In early life he was, in accordance with his teachings, an ardent Whig."

He voted in 1843, upon age, for Benj. A. Bidlack. Democratic candidate for Congress, (there were we believe no State candidates that year,) and in 1844 for Shunk for Governor. In short, his first vote was given to the Democratic party as have been his votes and voice ever since. All this is completely certain and beyond dispute.

The writer next speaks of, "him whom we have selected to represent us in the Senate Chamber during the coming two winters."

It is rather likely that "we"—Bradley or his writer—had very little to do with selecting the Senator for "the coming two winters." But we may just here mention for the information of our jejune writer, that the Senatorial term in this State is for three years instead of two.

Again, he says:—"Mr. B. * * entered heartily into the Johnson movement for the organization of a new party, hoping thereby to make himself the great central figure of a popular party etc."

There is not one word of truth in this statement. The Philadelphia (Johnson) Convention was endorsed by the Democratic State Committee, and Messrs. Wallace, Bigler, Hughes, Woodward and other leading Democrats attended it. Mr. Buckalew was almost the only man of our party, in a prominent position, who was not a member nor actively concerned in it; and his name we believe was almost the only one among those of the Democratic members of Congress which was not published to the original call for the Convention. "The great central figure" of the Johnson movement was so wonderfully inconspicuous at the time as to wholly escape observation. But, seriously, the tale is simply stuff.

The statement that Senator Buckalew "endeavored" to win the support of the old Democracy of the county by purchasing the Star and Democrat, placing its editor in nomination for a county office, &c.," is quite untrue. He had nothing whatever to do with the purchase, either as party or adviser, and had no knowledge of it until the negotiation had taken form. That purchase was made by us upon our own responsibility, and for business reasons alone. As to Mr. Jacoby's nomination, made long afterwards, it was an independent transaction with which, likewise, our Senator elect had nothing to do.

The admissions of Bradley, or his writer, in tracing the Senator's career, that "his political record, so far as his constituents are concerned, is as clean and bright as that of most men;" that "we do not believe he was dishonest," and that in the Senate at Washington "he was not a noisy demagogue but a gentleman," and "gained for himself the good opinion of the best men of both parties," make up a pretty strong eulogium, though they are hardly in keeping with other parts of the article in which they appear.

A Superfluous Defense.

Bradley, in the Republican, comes elaborately to the defense of Haycock, whose portrait we drew recently with a free but faithful pencil as that of the finest known specimen of "a leading Republican of Sullivan county." And here our neighbor makes a complete mistake. While he is indignant and Chalfant furious over that fine subject—the woes of Haycock—Haycock himself is in a state of supreme contentment. A friend writing to us from Sullivan, says: "Haycock is pleased with his notoriety." Of course he is. He has published "a confidential letter." He has been proclaimed—away from home—a "leading man" of his party. He has held sweet companionship with our neighbor—"the leading Republican"—of Columbia county—and also with the man of the Intelligencer, that "regular Democratic candidate for Senator" who came to grief at the recent election. And then he has had a first-class notice in the broad columns of the COLUMBIAN. His cup of enjoyment is full, and as he is happy, it follows that Bradley may restrain his tears.

The Verdict of Tuesday.

WE begin with Massachusetts. In this State Claflin, radical, is reported elected Governor by about 10,000 majority over Adams, democrat, though he received but a minority of all the votes cast, the workingmen's candidate having polled some 15,000. The city of Boston gives Adams about 3,000 majority. The democrats gain four or five Senators. Last year Massachusetts gave a majority of 77,069 for Grant, The result on Tuesday, therefore, shows a radical loss of 57,000!

Next come we to New York. The Empire State elects the whole democratic ticket by majorities ranging from 10,000 to 20,000. One branch of the legislature is certainly and the other probably democratic. A small vote was polled in New York city, but considering the effort made by the friends of Sigel and Greeley, who were both candidates on the radical State ticket, and the apparent indifference of the democrats of the city, the majorities for the democratic ticket, (43,000 for Nelson over Sigel and 39,500 for Allen over Greeley,) are quite respectable. But large democratic gains were made in the rural districts, and there were uniform radical losses throughout the State outside of New York city, Brooklyn and the river counties. The redemption of the legislature is a great point gained. In fact it gives the State to the democracy for years to come.

New Jersey responds to the greeting of New York, with a working majority of democrats in each branch of the legislature. This disposes of Mr. Cattell, who was foisted into the seat in the United States Senate filched from Mr. Stockton three years since. No State officers were chosen.

And now gallant, faithful, vigilant. Maryland echoes back the cry of victory. The Democracy have carried the State by at least 25,000, and the legislature is unanimously democratic. Not a vestige of radicalism is to be seen on the map of Maryland.

From the Northwest, so long under the baleful influence of false political doctrines, come tidings of democratic gains and radical defeat. In Minnesota the heavy majority for Grant last year, is almost swept away and it is claimed that there is a democratic majority in the legislature. In Wisconsin the democrats gain about 15,000 on last year's election; in Chicago and Cook county, Illinois, which gave Grant nearly 10,000 majority, the radicals are sent to Coventry, and in Alabama the "man and brother" has voted the right ticket.

Large democratic gains in West Virginia are reported. The legislature of that State, which, last year, contained 60 radicals and 18 democrats, is in doubt.

Now, what is the lesson taught by these results? One year ago the States of Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Wisconsin and Minnesota gave 61,887 majority for Ulysses S. Grant. On Tuesday last they gave about 20,000 majority for the democrats If this be not a rebuke to the National Administration, a sharp, stinging, staggering blow to remind the stolid smoker in the Presidential mansion that he must set his house in order, there is no virtue in the elective franchise and the ballot is nothing more that a paper pellet.—Patriot.

Hon. C. R. Buckalew.

This eminent statesman, whose term as U.S. Senator expired only last March, has just been re-elected to the State Senate, a position which he occupied once before. By an unfortunate split, three candidates were in the field, two Democrats and one Radical, but Mr. Buckalew handsomely distanced both his competitors. We rejoice over this consummation; for the Democratic party needs in the Senate commanding abilities such as Mr. B. possesses. Few men in the State, if any, are his superiors, either in parliamentary debate or astute leadership. Intellectually he belongs to the school of statesmen of which Judge Jeremiah S. Black and Judge Sharswood are shining lights—men who stand, in respect to real ability and personal integrity, head and shoulders above those even who are usually recognized as leaders. Such men are wanted in the councils of the nation.—Lewistown True Democrat.

Terrible Disaster.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—A special dispatch from Carbondale, Ill., says that the steamer Stonewall, which left St. Louis Tuesday evening for New Orleans heavily laden with passengers, and horses, mules, hay and other freight generally, took fire last night when near Neely's Landing, and despite all efforts to save her was burned to the water's edge. When the fire broke out every effort was made to land, but the steamer was so heavily laden that she could not be brought nearer than 100 yards of the shore. Great confusion and terror prevailed. There were about two hundred cabin and deck passengers on board, quite a number of whom were women and children. The flames spread with great rapidity. Scores of men sprung into the water and attempted to reach the shore by swimming. Nearly all of these were lost. Every conceivable object that could be obtained was thrown into the water, and to these the passengers clung with all the tenacity of life. The steamer Belle Memphis, Capt. Crane, on her way to St. Louis, reached the scene during the fire and picked up from the water all that are known to be saved. The pilot, engineer, stoker, carpenter and forty-four passengers, are known to be saved. The Captain, the clerks and other officers, the deck hands and many passengers were lost. The books and papers of the boat were lost, also the cattle and other freight on board. A number of persons died after reaching the shore from exposure in the water. There was no explosion. All the women and children were lost, nearly, if not all, being burned to death. The conduct of the officers and passengers is said to have been heroic. Such an appalling scene has not been witnessed on the Mississippi for many years. The saved were kindly cared for by the officers of the Belle Memphis and were taken to St. Louis.

Of the 250 passengers only about 60 were saved.

MR. EDITOR

DEAR SIR:—Rephorne & Co., have taken the contract to build the new Breaker, now in course of erection in Montana near this place. The lumber is coming in fast and it is hoped that work will be finished by the 1st of March.

Thomas Evans & Co., have the contract for sinking the shaft; it is now sunk sixty yards. The work is progressing favorably. Mr. Morris Robinson the owner, is a public spirited citizen, and understands coal affairs thoroughly. There is no doubt but that he will push the work to completion at an early date. This will be another raise to our end of the county. Mr. Robinson intends to build ten or twenty substantial and comfortable dwelling houses for miners. They will be more spacious and comfortable dwellings, than usual as they will be built so that two families only can occupy a block. As it is at present four families are general huddled together in similar buildings. This of course is injurious to health, and comfort, and this fact is well known to this enterprising operator. The increase of population here with a sufficient supply of labor for the men employed, at a fair compensation, is of great benefit to the farmers of our county. They can raise abundance of garden stuff of all kinds fit for use, and receive a ready market for it here.

A HORSE belonging to Mr. M. Hughes of Centralia, harnessed to James Bryson jr's., carriage, while standing tied at Leiby's Hotel at Montana, on Wednesday night of last week, got loose, ran off and was found on the mountain, the carriage broken, and the horse it is said, slightly injured. The "t" of the chain must have slipped through the bridle ring.

IN alluding to the death of Mr. Lightfoot, in last week's issue, instead of five children it should be one. My informant not to blame for this mistake.

A YOUNG married man by the name of John Butler, was accidently shot at Raven Run, four miles east of this borough on Tuesday last. He is in a very critical condition and fears are entertained for his recovery. He was an industrious and good citizen.

Mr. Butler has friends and sympathizers in this borough. That he may speedily recover is the sincere wish of your Correspondent. D. W. L.

USE OF BOTH HANDS.—It would be a good thing for men and women were they taught in childhood to use their left hand equally with the right. The use of the right hand only for certain actions—such as writing and working with mechanical tools—is entirely conventional, and there does not appear to be any reason why people should not be ambidexter in every kind of manual work. Persons who have lost their right hand by accident frequently acquire great facility with the left after some practice, but grown-up persons have not always the patience to betake themselves to the necessary practice. By children the thing would be acquired insensibly, if means were taken to lead them to the practice of it. Children living in houses where two languages are spoken, acquire both with great facility, and what is true of tongues would be equally so of hands.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

How Hostetter's Bitters cure Dyspepsia.
THE WHOLE STORY IN A NUTSHELL.
The office of the stomach is to convert the food into a cream-like semi-fluid, called CHYME. This is effected partly by the action of a solvent, called the gastric juice, which exudes from the coating of the stomach, and partly by a mechanical movement of that organ, which churns, as it were, the dissolving aliment. The Chyme passes from the stomach into the deodenum, or entrance to the bowels, where it is subjected to the action of the bile, and the nutritious portion of it converted into a fluid called Chyle, which eventually becomes blood.
Now, it is evident that if the great solvent, the gastric juice, is not produced in sufficient quantity, or if the mechanical action of the stomach is not sufficiently brisk, the first process of digestion will be but imperfectly performed. It is also clear that if the liver, which plays such an important part in changing the nourishing portion of the chyme into the material of the blood, is congested, or in any unnatural condition, the second process will not be thoroughly accomplished. The result of the two failures is dyspepsia, complicated with biliousness.
The mode in which HOSTETTER'S BITTERS operate in such cases is this: they invigorate the cellular membrane of the stomach, which evolves the gastric juice, thereby insuring an ample sufficiency of the fluid to completely dissolve the food. They also act upon the nerves of the stomach, causing an acceleration of the mechanical movement necessary to reduce the food to a homogeneous mass. They also act specifically upon the liver, strengthening it, and so enabling it to produce an ample and regular supply of bile, for the purpose of converting the nutritious particles of the Chyme into Chyle, and promote the passage through the bowels of the useless debris.
In this way, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS cure dyspepsia and liver complaint. The explanation is plain, simple, philosophical, and true.

ACTUAL CURE OF SCROFULA AND CONSUMPTION, BY THE GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY.
Geneva, N. Y., 1869
DR. YOUNG & BRO.—I desire to inform you that the marvelous effects of the Great Shoshonees Remedy in our family have been greater than any one could have expected. My daughter was afflicted with Scrofulous Consumption, and had an open Scrofulous Ulcer on the neck, she had a bad Cough, Pain in the Lung and severe Night Sweats. She expectorated much Mucous and Blood, had no appetite, and was greatly exhausted. She was not able to get out even to church for more than a year. She was attended by physicians, and took Cod Liver Oil for nearly two years, but still continued to sink, and the doctor at last stated that recovery was out of the question, and that all he could do was to relieve her sufferings; we fully expected her death, but were providentially induced to try a bottle of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, and, the effects being so marked, we of course continued its use; She has taken six bottles, and the Ulcer on the neck, the Expectoration of Blood, the Night Sweats, Cough, Debility, &c., have all disappeared, and strange to say she has actually quite recovered her former health.
My niece from Elmira is also taking the Remedy for Dyspepsia with good Results. The discovery of such a Remedy is what has been long needed.
With Grateful Regards, MRS. E. F. STAGG.
MARK THE TESTIMONY OF THE REV. DR. RANKINE.
I am well acquainted with Mrs. Stagg, and her daughter, who has used the Shoshonees Remedy, and can testify in the fullest manner to their high standing, and to the reliableness of their testimony. JAMES RANKINE.
Rector of St. Peter's Church Geneva, N. Y.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.
Harper's Magazine, apart from the illustrations contains from fifty to one hundred per cent, more matter than any similar periodical issued in the English language.
Critical Notices of the Press.
The most popular Monthly in the world.—New York Observer.
We must refer in terms of eulogy to the high tone and varied excellences of Harper's Magazine—a journal with a monthly circulation of about 120,000 copies—in whose pages are to be found some of the choicest light and general reading of the day. We speak of this work as an evidence of the culture of the American people; and the popularity it has acquired is merited. Each Number contains fully 144 pages of reading matter, appropriately illustrated with good woodcuts; and it combines in itself the racy monthly and the more philosophical quarterly, blended with the best features of the daily journal. It has great power in the dissemination of a love of pure literature.—TRUBNER'S Guide to American Literature, London.
It is one of the wonders of Journalism—the editorial management of Harper's. * * * All the periodicals which the Harpers publish are almost ideally well edited.—The Nation, N. Y.
We can account for its success only by the simple fact that it meets precisely the popular taste, furnishing a variety of pleasing and instructive reading for all.—Zion's Herald, Boston.

HARPER'S BAZAR.
A supplement containing numerous full-sized patterns of useful articles accompanies the paper every fortnight, and occasionally an elegant Colored Fashion Plate.
Harper's Bazar contains 16 folio pages of the size of Harper's Weekly, printed on superfine calendered paper, and is published weekly.
Critical Notices of the Press.
Harper's Bazar contains, besides pictures, patterns, etc., a variety of matter of special use and interest to the family; articles on health, dress, and housekeeping in all its branches; its editorial matter is specially adapted to the circle it is intended to interest and instruct; and it has, besides, good stories and literary matter of merit. It is not surprising that the journal, with such features, has achieved in a short time an immense success; for something of its kind was desired in thousands of families, and its publishers have filled the demand. The young lady who buys a single number of Harper's Bazar is made a subscriber for life.—New York Evening Post.
The Bazar is excellent. Like all the periodicals which the Harper's publish, it is almost ideally well edited, and the class of readers for whom it is intended—the mothers and daughters in average families—can not but profit by its good sense and good taste, which, we have no doubt, are to-day making very many homes happier than they may have been before the women began taking lessons in personal and household and social management from this good-natured mentor.—The Nation.
It has the merit of being sensible, of conveying instruction, of giving excellent patterns in every department, and of being well stocked with good reading matter.—Watchman and Reflector.

FISHINGCREEK, Sept. 17,'69-1f.

THE COLUMBIAN AND DEMOCRAT, BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA.

The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Friday Nov. 5, 1869.

GEARY and Grant have named Thursday, November 18th as Thanksgiving Day.

OUR friends should remember that on Tuesday next an election for Justice of the Peace will take place in this Township.

TEMPERATURE OF OCTOBER 1869 AT BLOOMSBURG.—Observed at sunrise.—Maximum 60° on the 3d; Average 38½°; Minimum 23° on the 26th. ON.

GENERAL SWEITZER has been appointed Supervisor of Revenue in Western Pennsylvania. Another Judas pockets the thirty pieces of silver.

ON last Friday that part of the estate of Henry Bauman known as the Swisher farm was sold to Nathan Miller for $2080. The homestead, consisting of 88½ acres was sold to Charles Gearhart for $3537.

A TRACT of mountain land near Mainville, belonging to the heirs of Jacob Shuman, deceased, consisting of 596½ acres of land was sold on Saturday last to Wm. T. Shuman and John W. Shuman for $1725.

JUSTICES of the Peace elect at the late elections, who wish to accept and take their commissions, should lose no time in notifying the Prothonotary of their intention so to do otherwise they may fail to get them.

THE Odd Fellows of Berwick propose holding a Festival and Fair, on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 18th, the proceeds to be applied towards furnishing their new Hall.—Berwick Gazette.

A CORRESPONDENT, in answer to our suggestion of last week, suggests some one of the following beautiful Indian names as a substitute for Long Pond. We would prefer the last—Nonnuphannowhow, Wuttaquatinnit, Upqueakussennum, Yawataw, and Manophhownattuttinusk.

WANTED.—We want at this office a bright, active, intelligent boy to learn the printing trade. The applicant must have a competent knowledge of the ordinary English branches taught in our common schools. The opening is a fine one, and as there are already several applicants we shall take the most competent one. Applications must be made at once.

NEWSPAPER CHANGE.—After nearly forty years of constant labor as editor, Col. L. L. Tate, retires to private life, having sold his undivided one-half interest in the Standard to his partner, Andrew H. Hopkins. Age and declining health induce him to take this step. Mr. Hopkins is a man of keen intellect, an able writer, and has had much newspaper experience. We hope to see the Standard flourish under his management, as it is the only Democratic paper left in the county.

THE FIGURES:—Total Vote in this Senatorial District, 16,786. Buckalew, 8,200; Whitmoyer, 6,493; Chalfant, 2,093. Buckalew's majority over Whitmoyer, 1,707; over Chalfant, 6,107.

Chalfant received less than one vote in each in the district. Outside of Montour county he received but one vote in 21. Of voters for Chalfant we estimate that 250 were Republicans, which would make his Democratic vote, 1843. The total Democratic vote in the District, given to Packer was 10,028.

BEAR SUPPER.—The bear shot several days since by Col. A. von Schluembach, while on a hunting excursion at Long Pond, was served up in elegant style at his saloon last evening, with various savory accompaniments. Quite a number of the Colonel's friends were present, wine of course flowed freely, and they all went home happy and merry, dubbing the Colonel a hale and well met fellow, and wishing him every success.—Scranton Republican.

Col. A. von Schluembach has a great deal of the Baron Munchausen about him. He did not shoot the aforesaid bear. It was killed by Jake Myers, and was a cold, cold corpse long before the valorous Col. saw it. We happened to be on the mountain at the time, and know the facts.

THE AMERICAN BASTILE.—We have been shown a copy of this valuable work by Rev. Mr. Sutton of Stillwater who is the Agent for Columbia County. It is a work of 730 pages, bound in cloth, and handsomely illustrated. Price $3.50. The book gives a full, circumstantial statement of the different arrests of citizens by the military authorities. Some fifteen pages are devoted to "The Columbia county Invasion." The book is a very interesting one, and a valuable contribution to the political history of the country.

THE following are the names of purchasers and amounts paid for different tracts of the Jacob Eyer Estate.

Part of the Farm near Bloomsburg, on which are the buildings sold to Samuel Johnson for $100 per acre. The remainder of the farm together with the "Still House" lot to Philip Eyer for $100 per acre.

Farm in Greenwood township to Wm. Eyer for about $40 per acre.

Part of the Farm in Madison township near Eyer's Grove to Cyrus Demott. The remainder of the farm to Annie Welliver.

One half of the Grist Mill in Eyer's Grove to Wm. Eyer for $6000.

Brick house and lot in Eyer's Grove to Jacob Welliver for $1950.

SANDERS of the Gazette, stung by our exposure of his attempt to levy "black mail" upon the county candidates for printing "bogus" tickets which were not used at the election, breaks out into abuse of Mr. Buckalew as the alleged author of our article, though he never saw it or heard of it until it was printed. The fact is, poor Sanders is, at this time, in nearly as bad a temper as Chalfant himself; but that is no reason why he should be permitted to plunder the county candidates with impunity. We repeat our former statement, that we printed a full supply of tickets for the whole county and that over 3,400 of them were voted, while there were but 234 Chalfant votes all told in the county and some of them voted on Republican tickets. Sanders in printing Chalfant tickets (if in fact he did print them) was compelled to print the names of the county candidates on the same slips with Chalfant's in order to get them used. The candidates could hardly thank him for what was an act of necessity in carrying out his engagement of treachery to our party. Let him rest content with his "ring" money. The "ten stroke" he boasted he would make out of the Senator question ought not to include contributions from both sides. At all events the regular candidates are under no obligation, legal or moral, to pay him one cent for work done exclusively in the interest of the stump candidate for Senator and in hostility to our party organization. Even if such an obligation rested upon them, his charges would be extortionate and preposterous considering the small number of tickets of his base issue which were used at the election.

OUR cotemporary is adopting phonetics in this paper. In the heading to his paper we see in large type "COLUMBA COUNY."

QUITE a revival is in progress at Benton, some forty persons having joined the church. The Christian denomination have it in charge.

POOR HOUSE.—The following were the votes of the different townships on the Poor House Question. Greenwood, For, 122, Against, 21; Mt. Pleasant, For, 4, Against, 105; Roaring Creek, For, 60, Against, 1; Scott, For, 219, Against, 48;

THINGS must have been "mixed" in the Republican office this week. In its Centralia Directory it mentions a society of which the people there have no knowledge.

BRADLEY devotes over a column of editorial to "our State Senator." His ignorance of the subject may be judged from the fact that he represents him as being elected for two years instead of three.

HON. CHARLES R. BUCKALEW has been elected a Democratic State Senator from the XVth (Pennsylvania) district. He is one of the men of whom any party ought to be proud. He was an honest Senator in Congress, and will be an honest Senator in the State Legislature.—Press.

RATHER PERSONAL.—The following notice of a delinquent subscriber we clip from the Allentown Democrat. It is rather personal, but to the point:

Joe Lazarus, of Catasauqua, has been reading our paper since Aug. 1, 1860, without paying for it. Would like to see you come down with $18.27, Joseph. If you don't, we are going to make the best "local" of you that our readers have seen in a long while. So take your choice, Joe.

PARTRIDGE SHOOTING.—As the time for shooting partridges or quails is at hand, we would again remind our sportsmen that about a year ago, after considerable expense, the Central Game Association procured in the West a quantity of these birds which were distributed through various sections of the county for the purpose of propagation. The experiment has proved a success, and it is hoped that in pursuance of the understanding that the partridges were not to be disturbed this season, that sportsmen will not shoot them, and by next year it is expected there will be plenty for all. The members of the Association have pledged themselves not to disturb the partridges this season.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

SPLENDID!—That assortment of Fall and Winter Dry Goods which Miller & Wolf have just laid in. You will miss a treat if you do not stop and see them. They also keep the very best of Groceries, and Furnishing Goods. Such enterprising men deserve success and they are enjoying it.

A MOST PERFECT REGULATOR of the whole human system is found in Dr. Pierce's Alterative Extract, or Golden Medical Discovery. It cures Female Weakness, Weak Back and all irregularities. It is a great restorative tonic, and nerve force generator, and hence in all cases of Nervous or General Debility, nothing can equal it. Sold by druggists, or send three dollars and twenty-five cents to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and get three bottles, free of express charges.

OUR Fur Traders and Trappers, in fitting out here, find Ayer's medicines one of their most profitable articles of traffic. Around Slave Lake and the wild regions of the north, the Indians know their uses and have an abiding faith in them. They say: "Ayer—great medicine—cure sick man," and his remedies for the diseases from which they suffer will often bring forth their stock of skins even quicker than wampum, rum, or tobacco. Savages are not fools if they are unsophisticated in some of the arts of civilization.—[Montreal Pilot.

WE have received "A School History of Pennsylvania from the earliest settlements to the present time," by J. R. Sypher. This book which has been adopted by the Board of Control for the use of the Schools of Philadelphia, is written in a concise yet comprehensive manner and seems to be admirable in every respect. It will undoubtedly meet with very general adoption. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co. Philadelphia at $1 50. For sale by A. D. Webb, Bloomsburg. 3t*

A MERITORIOUS ARTICLE.—We are tired of this idea of "puffing" humbug medicines that are constantly thrown into drug stores, and are merely an imposition upon the community. But, when an article comes into the market that is really worthy of comment, we are happy to make public acknowledgement, trusting that some benefit may arise therefrom. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and we take pleasure in calling attention to it because we know it to be a good article, and a sure cure for that loathsome disease, Catarrh. It is sold by most Druggists, or may be obtained for Sixty Cents through the mail by addressing the proprietor as above.—Cleveland Herald.

ONE of the few really successful enterprises of the day is Parker & Co.'s One Dollar Sale. Their system offers a greater opportunity for the purchase of the thousand and one useful articles, at a price that comes within the reach of all classes, than any other.

It is a well understood fact, that certain classes of goods pay the dealer a very large percentage of profit: This appears almost necessary, especially in Fancy Goods, Jewelry, Silver Plated Ware, &c., of which a dealer does not sell sufficient of any one article to make it an object of trade, and is obliged to purchase in small quantities; and when the goods are sold by three or four different classes of merchants, and each charge a very large profit, the price becomes double the original cost of manufacture before reaching the hands of the people.

It is in such goods Parker & Co., 98 & 100 Summer St., Boston, deal most extensively. Their sales are so immense they make each article a specialty, often buying all a manufacturer can produce. Their system gives universal satisfaction. Read their advertisement.

NO. CI.

THE MUD CAMPAIGN.

No man who ever served in the Army of the Potomac needs an explanation as to which of the numerous campaigns of the "Grand Army of the East" is alluded to. Burnside, smarting under the defeat administered in front of Fredericksburg, and fearful of the popular clamor of "On to Richmond," which had proved M'Clellan's destruction, conceived the idea of a sudden attack in mid-winter on Lee's flank. His army was in a most unfortunate position for such a movement. In the first place he distrusted himself. He had stated in his testimony before the Committee on the conduct of the war that "M'Clellan could command the Army of The Potomac better than any other general in it." In the next place the subordinate generals and the soldiers had lost all confidence in his ability, after the Fredericksburg fiasco. And here I may add that the American soldier is no mean critic in military matters. His life is in the hands of his superiors, and while willing to give it, if necessary, his intelligence enables him to perceive at once when a blunder has been made.

The army was in a complete state of demoralization. Suspicion, jealousy and doubt rankled in the breasts of the superior officers, and all discipline and order seemed to be lost among the common soldiers. Desertions averaged nearly 200 a day, and 80,000 absentees were recorded on the morning reports.

Orders were issued to the army to be ready to march on Saturday, January 17th, but the movement was postponed until the following Tuesday. Though the point of attack was kept a profound secret, no one had any faith in its success. In fact we all left our tents and camp arrangements in perfect order, expecting soon to return and reoccupy them.

Up to this time the weather had been remarkably clear and pleasant, but no sooner did the march begin, than the skies began to weep copious tears as if in protest against the intended sacrifice. The Left Grand Division (Franklin's) to which our Battery was attached, moved through fields and unfrequented woods to a position formerly occupied by Sumner's Grand Division, and encamped for the night not far from the Rappahannock. The infantry moved with difficulty, but it was almost impossible to get the artillery in position. The men were compelled to bivouac on the cold, wet ground, without even a fire, and many a one will date his rheumatism and broken health from that night.

Morning came, but still the rain descended. The men were wet, cold and disheartened, yet must move forward, the horses were unfit for service yet must pull on. Guns, caissons, trains, pontoons, ambulances, were all mixed up, and constantly miring in the bottomless soil. It is impossible to give a correct idea of Virginia mud. It is not mud, but a combination of mire and quicksand, which seems to dissolve under the continued rain, yet is as adhesive as tar. Teams were doubled, sometimes as many as twenty horses being fastened to one piece—details of infantry assisted at the wheels, but each effort sank them the deeper. The poor horses shivered as they toiled through the mire, or neighed pitifully under the repeated strokes of merciless drivers. Hundreds of them died or were shot in their tracks, and the line of march was marked by their dead bodies. When the men gave out from exhaustion, they were laid aside in the mud and covered with a blanket.

The plan of attack seems to have been to make a diversion at or below Fredericksburg, while an actual crossing would be made above so as to turn Lee's flank. On Tuesday Burnside issued an address to the army, in which he stated that we were again to attack the enemy, now weakened by having sent forces to North Carolina and the West, and calling upon his army to make another effort to give the enemy an overwhelming defeat. The address was received in ominous silence.

Notwithstanding the almost superhuman efforts of horses and men, no crossing could be effected. The enemy by this time, if not before, had discovered our design, and had a strong force on the opposite side,—the river rose rapidly—the bluffs were inaccessible—our men could not all reach the river—and the artillery, even if across could not maneuver.

The enemy, posted on the opposite side of the river, enjoyed our dilemma. A large canvass was displayed bearing the words, "Burnside stuck in the mud." They tauntingly asked, "Why don't you lay your pontoons?" "Shall we send a detail of South Carolinians to assist you?"

Burnside at last saw the futility of the movement, and ordered the army back to their winter quarters. Then all semblance of discipline was lost. Regiments wandered from their Brigades, batteries got hopelessly mixed up with the numerous trains, while the bad roads prevented many from obeying the order. Men straggled all over the country searching quarters and rations. It looked like a badly defeated army. Had the enemy crossed at this time, no organized opposition could have been made to them.

Burnside then saw that he could no longer be useful to the Army of the Potomac. Instead of seeing his own deficiencies, however, he laid the blame upon his subordinate officers, and on Friday, January 23d issued his celebrated General Order No. 8, dismissing Gens. Hooker, Brooks, and Newton, and relieving Gens Franklin, W. F. Smith, Sturgis, Ferrero, Cochrane, and Col. Taylor. President Lincoln refused to approve this order, and accepted the alternative, Burnside's resignation. The order dismissing Hooker read as follows:

First. Gen. Joseph E. Hooker, Major General of Volunteers and Brigadier General of the United States Army, having been guilty of unjust and unnecessary criticisms of the actions of his superior officers, and of the authorities, and having, by the general tone of his conversation, endeavored to create distrust in the minds of officers who have associated with him, and having, by omissions and otherwise, made reports and statements which were calculated to create incorrect impressions, and of habitually speaking in disparaging terms of other officers is hereby dismissed the service of the United States, as a man unfit to hold an important commission during a crisis like the present, when so much patience, charity, confidence, consideration, and patriotism are due from every soldier in the field. The order is issued subject to the approval of the President of the United States.

With his usual lack of discretion, Lincoln placed the disgraced officer in command of the Army of Potomac, and only learned of his mistake after Chancellorsville. QUIEN SABE?

THE ONLY RELIABLE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA IN THE KNOWN WORLD.

Dr. Wishart's Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial are a positive and infallible cure for dyspepsia in its most aggravated form, and no matter of how long standing.

They penetrate the secret abode of this terrible disease, and exterminate it, root and branch, forever.

They alleviate more agony and silent suffering than tongue can tell.

They are noted for curing the most desperate and hopeless cases, when every known means fail to afford relief.

No form of dyspepsia or indigestion can resist their penetrating power.

DR. WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite. It strengthens the debilitated system. It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which scrofula breeds on the lungs. It dissolves the mucus or phlegm which stops the air passages of the lungs. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain and subduing inflammation. It is the result of years of study and experiment, and it is offered to the afflicted with positive assurance of its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to the means of cure:—Consumption of the Lungs, Cough, Sore Throat, and Breast, Bronchitis, Liver Complaint, Blind and Bleeding Piles, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diptheria, &c.

A medical expert, holding honorable collegiate diplomas, devotes his entire time to the examination of patients at the office parlors. Associated with him are three consulting physicians of acknowledged eminence, whose services are given to the public FREE OF CHARGE.

This opportunity is offered by no other institution in the country.

Letters from any part of the country, asking advice, will be promptly and gratuitously responded to. Where convenient, remittances should take the shape of

DOTY'S WASHING-MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED—AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER

Improved with Rowell's Patent Double Cog-Wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"I heartily commend it to economists of time, money, and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our Machine,' after a years' use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it, one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catharine's Nursery, N. Y. City.

"After a constant use of the Universal Clothes Wringer for more than four years in our family, I am authorized by the 'powers that be,' to give it the most unqualified praise, and to pronounce it an indispensable part of the machinery of housekeeping. Our servants have always been willing to use it, and always have liked it."—Henry Ward Beecher.

PRICES.—A FAIR OFFER.

Send the retail price, Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in a year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make money fast selling them.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.

R. C. BROWNING, Gen. Agent,
32 Cortlandt Street, New York.
Oct. 15,'69-3m.

FORTY THOUSAND CASES OF goods were shipped from our house in One Year, to families, clubs, and merchants, in every part of the country, from Maine to California, amounting in value to over

ONE MILLION DOLLARS.

Our facilities for transacting this immense business are better than ever before. We have agents in all the principal cities to purchase goods from the Manufacturers, Importers, and others for CASH, and often at an immense sacrifice from the original cost of production.

Our stock consists, in part, of the following goods:—

Shawls, Blankets, Quilts, Cottons, Ginghams, Dress Goods, Table Linen, Towels, Hosiery, Gloves Skirts, Corsets, &c., &c.

Silver-Plated ware, Spoons plated on Nickel Silver, Dessert Forks, five-bottle plated Castors, Britannia Ware, Glass Ware, Table and Pocket Cutlery, in great variety.

Elegant French and German Fancy Goods, Beautiful Photograph Albums, the newest and choicest styles in Morocco and Velvet Bindings.

Morocco Travelling Bags, Handkerchief and Glove Boxes, &c.

Gold and Plated Jewelry, of the newest styles.

We have also made arrangements with some of the leading Publishing Houses, that will enable us to sell the standard and latest works of popular authors at about one-half the regular price:—such as BYRON, MOORE, BURNS, MILTON, and TENNYSON'S WORKS, in full Gilt and Cloth Bindings,—and hundreds of others. These and everything else for

ONE DOLLAR FOR EACH ARTICLE.

We do not offer a single article of merchandise that can be sold by regular dealers at our price. We do not ask you to buy goods from us unless we can sell them cheaper than you can obtain them in any other way,—while the greater part of our goods are sold at about

ONE-HALF THE REGULAR RATES.

We want good reliable agents in every part of the country. By employing your spare time to form clubs and sending us orders, you can obtain the most liberal commissions, either in Cash or MERCHANDISE, and all goods sent by us will be as represented, and we guarantee satisfaction to every one dealing with our house.

Agents should collect ten cents from each customer and forward to us in advance, for Descriptive Checks of the goods we sell.

The holders of the Checks have the privilege of either purchasing the article therein described, or of exchanging for any article mentioned on our Catalogue, numbering over 350 different articles,—not one of which can be purchased in the usual way for the same money.

The advantages of first sending for Checks are these: We are constantly buying small lots of very valuable goods, which are not on our catalogues, and for which we issue checks till all are sold; besides, in every large club we will put checks for Watches, Quilts, Blankets, Dress Patterns, or some other articles of value, giving some members of the club an opportunity of purchasing an article for about one quarter of its value.

"In every order amounting to over $50, accompanied by the cash, the Agent may retain $2.00, and in every order of over $100, $5.00 may be retained to

PAY THE EXPRESS CHARGES.

This offer is more especially to assist Agents in the Western and Southern States, but is open to all customers.

COMMISSIONS:

Agents will be paid ten per cent. in Cash or Merchandise, when they FILL UP THEIR ENTIRE CLUB, for which below we give a partial List of Commissions:

For an order of $30, from a club of Thirty, we will pay the Agent, as commission, 28 yds. Brown or Bleached Sheeting, Good Dress Pattern, Wool Square Shawl, French Cassimere Pants and Vest Pattern, Fine Large White Counterpane, etc., etc., or $3.00 in cash.

DOMESTIC ECONOMY!

CAMPHELL'S CARPET!

A new, clean durable, healthy, and a

FLOOR COVERING!

A substitute for oil-cloth at one-third the cost.

This carpet is produced by a peculiar combination of strong, heavy paper printed in ornamental colors, and coated with a tough, elastic, water proof enamel which renders the surface, protects the colors and paper endures washing, and renders the carpet bright and beautiful to the extreme. Its advantages are as follows:—

Its cost renders it available to all classes: It is exceedingly smooth and glossy, and it accumulates next to no dust: It does not require to be taken up and cleaned like other carpet, and thus saves much labor and trouble; By re-coating with the Campbell Enamel occasionally as the case may require, (which costs but a trifle,) it will last indefinitely, even as age and always appear new and bright; in its use no reliance whatever is placed upon the paper for wear, but exclusively upon the water-proof coating, the figured paper being used only to secure the colors. Paper has recently been used for a variety of purposes, even for trunks, roofs, flour bags and wearing apparel, but the first attempt, either in Europe or America, to convert it into carpet or floor covering, all of which is its entire success!

We have purchased the right for Columbia county and can furnish the carpet to merchants at manufacturers prices.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

Fattening Sheep.

On some farms a great many tons of excellent straw might be employed to a satisfactory profit in making mutton during cold weather, if it were sheltered from heavy rains and snow. In many instances, all the grain in the barn is passed through a machine and the straw piled in a huge stack, where nearly one-half of it is rendered unfit for fodder. If the straw be bright, it will pay to return as much of it as the mow will receive, and secure the remainder in a long and narrow stack, which may be covered with a temporary roof of boards. Then, during the foddering season, if young sheep having sharp teeth be fed with one pound each per day of Indian corn meal and oil meal, with all the straw they will consume and a little hay, and an occasional feeding of corn stalks, they will be in excellent condition for slaughtering by the end of the foddering season. But such sheep will need an occasional feeding of turnips, potatoes or apples, in connection with so large a supply of dry fodder, or they cannot be expected to thrive in a satisfactory manner. There is no other way that a farmer can work a large straw stack into excellent manure with more facility than with sheep. They will consume a larger proportion of the good straw, which, with the aid of a little grain and a variety of other fodder in only small quantities, and access to water, will render making mutton quite as profitable as any other employment,as fat sheep usually command a paying price wherever they may be. Before oil meal shall be in such demand in the market that the supply is inadequate to the requirements of the trade, it will be consonant with sound economy to secure several tons for winter's use. Then let sheds, racks and feeding troughs be put in order before the grazing season is at an end, so that sheep may not fall away during the change from grass to dry fodder.

Oil meal is one of the most economical kinds of feed that can be made use of, for feeding any kind of stock. But, it is always advisable to mingle it in equal quantities with wheat bran, or the meal of some kind of grain, or sprinkle it on cut, or crushed roots or fruit. By this means, stock may soon be induced to eat oil meal with avidity. —N. Y. Observer.

Collecting Manure from Cow Yards.—Talk to a farmer about the value of manure, and the importance of collecting and saving it for future use, and he is astonished that any one should suspect that he is not master of that subject and practiced it to the last shovelfull.

Then take a walk with him to his summer cow-yard, where the milking is done mornings and evenings, and the lane leading to it, and you will find the droppings of perhaps six months or a year scattered about and tramped into the dust, and partially washed away by the rains,to the amount of cart loads.

One cart load of this is worth more than two from the barn yard, as any practical gardener will tell you. But the farmer looks upon these droppings, many of which are reduced to a powder, as beneath his notice. There is a waste that might have added ten bushels of wheat to his granary, or a ton of hay to his mow, if it had been collected every week and properly applied.

One hour's labor every week would have been worth more in producing crops than a ton of so-called phosphate at a cost of sixty dollars in cash.

These droppings always make their mark when applied to the land—the phosphates not always.

These remarks do not apply to all farmers, there are many honorable exceptons,and there are too many to whom it will apply, and their fields tell a tale too, but not to their credit.

We hope that some of them will take the hint; fields show it to their advantage.

Fields are terrible tell-tales.—American Stock Journal.

Our Receipt for Curing Meat.—To one gallon of water,

Take 1½ lbs. of salt,
½ lb. of sugar,
½ oz. of saltpetre,
½ oz. of potash.

In this ratio the pickle to be increased to any quantity desired. Let these be boiled together, until all the dirt from the sugar rises to the top and is skimmed off. Then throw it into a tub to cool, and when cold, pour it over your beef or pork, to remain the usual time, say four or five weeks. The meat must be well covered with pickle,and should not be put down for at least two days after killing,during which time it should be sprinkled with powdered salt petre, which removes all the surface blood,etc. leaving the meat fresh and clean. Some omit boiling the pickle, and find it to answer well; though the operation of boiling purifies the pickle by throwing off the dirt always to be found in salt and sugar.

If this receipt is properly tried it will never be abandoned. There is none that surpasses it, if so good.—Germantown Telegraph.

How to Save Corn Fodder.—Much of the value of corn fodder is destroyed by careless handling, even in the districts where they store it for feed. This is especially true of the corn that is cut up by the ground, and put in shocks to cure. The curing process goes on safely while it remains in the shock, but the husking begins while the stalks are yet green at the bottom, and the fodder is immediately stacked carried to the barn, and stored in bulk. It soon heats and moulds. If, after husking, the stalks are bound immediately in bundles, of convenient size for handling, and put into large shocks of thirty or forty bundles, set up endwise, and capped with straw, they will cure without moulding, and make excellent fodder. Or the bundles may be taken directly to the barn, or to an open shed, and stored in the same. The air has free circulation through the interstices of the bundles, and the moisture is carried off. Well cured corn fodder is nearly equal in value to hay, and the extra labor of making into bundles will pay.

Horses.—Water your horses from a pond or stream, rather than from a spring or well,because the latter is generally hard and cold, while the former is soft and comparatively warm. The horse prefers soft muddy water to hard water, though ever so clear.

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

The Bear and the Skrattel.

One Christmas Day, the King of Norway sat in the great hall of his palace, holding a feast. "Here's a health," said he, "to our brother the King of Denmark! What present shall we send our royal brother, as a pledge of our good-will, this Christmas time?" "Send him, please your majesty," said the Norseman Gunter, who was the king's chief huntsman, "one of our fine white bears, that his liegemen may show their little ones what sort of kittens we play with." "Well said, Gunter!" cried the king; "but how shall we find a bear that will travel so long a journey willingly, and will know how to behave himself to our worthy brother when he reaches him?" "Please your majesty," said Gunter, "I have a glorious fellow, as white as snow, that I caught when he was a cub; he will follow me wherever I go, play with my children, stand on his hind legs, and behave himself as well as any gentleman ought to do. He is at your service, and I will myself take him wherever you choose."

So the king was well pleased, and ordered Gunter to set off at once with master Bruin: "Start with the morning's dawn," said he "and make the best of your way."

The Norseman went home to his house in the forest; and early next morning he waked master Bruin; put the king's collar round his neck, and away they went over rocks and valleys, lakes and seas, the nearest road to the court of the King of Denmark. When they arrived there, the king was away on a journey,and Gunter and his fellow-traveller set out to follow. It was bright weather, the sun shone, and the birds sang, as they journeyed merrily on, day after day, over hill and over dale, till they came within a day's journey of where the king was.

All that afternoon they travelled through a gloomy dark forest; but towards evening the wind began to whistle through the trees, and the clouds began to gather and threaten a stormy night. The road, too, was very rough, and it was not easy to tell which was most tired, Bruin or his master. What made the matter worse was, that they had found no inn that day by the road-side, and their provisions had fallen short; so that they had no very pleasant prospect before them for the night. "A pretty affair this!" said Gunter, "I am likely to be charmingly off here in the woods, with an empty stomach, a damp bed, and a bear for my bed-fellow."

While the Norseman was turning this over in his mind, the wind blew harder and harder, and the clouds grew darker and darker; the bear shook his ears, and his master looked at his wits' end, when to his great joy a woodman came whistling along out of the woods, by the side of his horse dragging a load of fagots. As soon as he came up, Gunter stopped him, and begged hard for a night's lodging for himself and his countryman.

The woodman seemed hearty and good-natured enough, and was quite ready to find shelter for the huntsman; but as to the bear, he had never seen such a beast before in his life, and would have nothing to do with him on any terms. The huntsman begged hard for his friend, and told how he was bringing him as a present to the king of Denmark; and how he was the most good-natured, best behaved animal in the world, though he must allow that he was by no means one of the handsomest.

The woodman. however, was not to be moved. His wife, he was sure,would not like such a guest, and who could say what he might take into his head to do? Besides, he should lose his dog and his cat, his ducks and his geese; for they would all run away for fright, whether the bear was disposed to be friends with them or not.

"Good night, master huntsman!" said he; "if you and old shaggy-back there cannot part, I am afraid you must e'en stay where you are, though you will have a sad night of it, no doubt." Then he cracked his whip, whistled up his horse, and set off once more on his way homewards.

The huntsman grumbled, and Bruin grunted, as they followed slowly after; when to their great joy they saw the woodman, before he had gone many yards, pull up his horse once more and turn round. "Stay, stay!" said he; "I think I can tell you of a plan better than sleeping in a ditch. I know where you may find shelter, if you will run the risk of a little trouble from an unlucky imp, that has taken up its abode in my old house down the hill yonder. You must know, friend, that till last winter I lived in yon snug little house that you will see at the foot of the hill if you come this way. Everything went smoothly on with us till one unlucky night, when the storm blew as it seems likely to do to-night, some spiteful guest took it into his head to pay us a visit; and there have ever since been such noises, clattering, and scampering up stairs and down, from midnight till the cock crows in the morning, that at last we were fairly driven out of house and home. What he is like no one knows; for we never saw him or anything belonging to him, except a little crooked high-heeled shoe, that he left one night in the pantry. But though we have not seen him, we know he has a hand or a paw as heavy as lead; for when it pleases him to lay it upon any one, down he goes as if the blacksmith's hammer had hit him. There is no end of his monkey tricks. If the linen is hung out to dry, he cuts the line. If he wants a cup of ale, he leaves the tap running. If the fowls are shut up, he lets them loose. He puts the pig into the garden, rides upon the cows, and turns the horses into the hay-yard; and several times he nearly burnt the house down, by leaving a candle alight among the fagots. And then he is sometimes so nimble and active, that when he is once in motion, nothing stands still around him. Dishes and plates—pots and pans—dance about, clattering, making the most horrible music, and breaking each other to pieces; and sometimes, when the whim takes him, the chairs and tables seem as if they were alive, and dancing a hornpipe, or playing battledore and shuttlecock together. Even the stones and beams of the house seem rattling against one another; and it is of no use putting things in order, for the first freak the imp took would turn everything upside down again.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
